Massasoit Staff

The Massasoit Staff presents this volume in the hopes that its readers will spend many happy hours in recalling the events which, we believe, will live in their memories much more clearly for having possessed this book.

We are grateful to all of those who made this publication possible, both by helpful suggestions and by staunch cooperation. Especially do we wish to acknowledge the assistance of Mr. Althoff, '27, and Mr. Bartholomeusz for their fine work in the Art Department, and the work of Mr. Hagberg, '26, on the Business Staff.

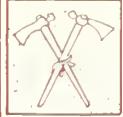

We appreciate that our goal, perfection, has not been attained. We ask that the 1924 edition will be accepted in a tolerant and kindly spirit. Your enjoyment of this volume will be greatly enhanced by such an attitude.

The Challenge of To-day

THROUGH the open door of life the real of progress beckons to us all and to our ears come the shouts of those who have gone on before. Man was born to grow and progress and to do his share of the world's work; failing to do this he is throwing away life and to throw away life is the greatest crime that man can commit.

Great things have been done but greater ones still remain undone. The men who have achieved were among those of great purpose, strength, courage and self-reliance, contented not, but ever becoming stronger by battering down resisting obstacles. To them hardship, bitter toil, strife and despair were the mechanic's tools that have carved out the finished product. They have gone on, hurling back the challenge to follow. Shall we hesitate and be pushed aside by the new life that follows us; or shall we accept the challenge, facing the new days with an aim and a purpose worthy of the best, remembering that nine out of every ten failures are born of unbelief, and great leaders have been inspired by great aims and purposes.

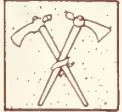

No day of the past can boast of greater achievements and possibilities than can the present day, and in no day of the past was there ever so great a need for man to fulfill his place in life as there is today. Let us answer the challenge realizing that life is opportunity and if we are to accomplish our mission in life we must progress.

PAUL OTTO.

Class History

HT WAS great, when we were Freshmen. Do not mistake me, I did not say we were great, though we might have been. We laughed seldom. It was not being permitted by those higher up, nor being indulged in by those lower down, meaning ourselves. We dragged our prescribed thirty hours a week doggedly. We bore the indignities of initiation where they did not show. We withstood the humiliating and absurd ceremonies of the D. D. D.'s without an audible murmur. We thought a lot but one cannot be arrested for that. I say we withstood it because sitting was not a pleasure.

But we were veritable lions in sheepskins and not because the weather was cold. Our souls rebelled oftentimes, but our feet made of clay, with fallen arches and hay clinging to them as to an old friend, carried us falteringly but surely to the end of our servitude. Down the designated path we trod as beaten a path as we were.

MASSASOIT

Whatever else we were not—we were, at least, humble. We stole the Sophomore canoe and broke up the Cooley Hotel specialty and troubled our inheritance. Less noisome than a pestilence, we knew our place but as no one agreed with us about it, of course we couldn't get along.

Truly we had a great beginning—thrust or brought to bear upon us for the most part.

'Twas great to be a Sophomore. We had a good future behind us and had "arrived." We came back to take charge of things and mainly to tell the Frosh where to head in. Strange to say, we found the Freshmen dumber than we could ever have been.

We ran the D. D. D.'s as never before or since. We got mixed up, and by careful manipulations had a number of seniors and faculty members up on the carpet before the Imperial Gizzard. We had them so scared some of our bravest men had to leave school.

We had the singular horror of being present when those who could voted a binding amendment to Dr. McCurdy's constitution while strapped up like heroes in the East Gymnasium. Yes, we were martyrs to the cause. The cause of all this was, of course, the Frosh.

With all the arrogance and intolerance of self-invested authority, we struggled through the year to a glorious victory, though our numbers were greatly diminished. We were Sophomores but once, but who can say we did not make the most of it?

'Twas greater still we were, as Juniors. We had that "throw your hat away" attitude, so apparent and significant in third year men. Safely past the Freshman ignorance and Sophomore false wisdom we were content to rest on our borrowed paddles a bit and go to school. The allusion to paddles is with reference to initiation paddles, not canoe paddles. We were above the squibbling of mere Frosh and Sophs.

Ah! you have guessed it! We had heard the cantankerous call of the Intellectuals. We had to learn about this business of life, love, work, death and salary.

But we had our fun. That is—we didn't study all the time. There was Lake Massasoit calling us—hardly an intellectual call, but a little bit of all right y' know.

Then came the Junior trip--a picnic on wheels. You learn a lot of stuff you want to forget, you forget a lot of addresses and phone numbers you want to remember. A lot of men shake hands with you at lunch time to keep you from eating and you go to a lunch room after each banquet. A good time was had by all who participated but those who did not indulge were healthier and—wealthier!

The Junior Prom was what was a prom. Every one had a hot time. "Swimmin' Down to Lane's" was the popular air. Nuf Sed.

Ah! Juniors—pre-seniors—quiet, studious, inactive, looking back, looking ahead, more than half way through, the crowning milestones yet to be obtained.

'Tis great to be a Senior. No thesis to write, no early classes, no thirty hours a week, no Junior Prom tax, no sidewalk to build—nothing but debts! Oh! Boy! Riding on the top of the World on an Band wagon waiting for the axe.

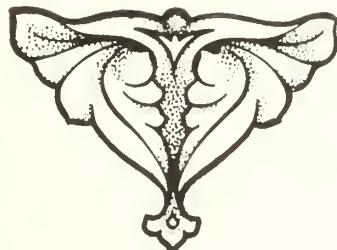

Graduation just ahead—the last milestone. Just waiting around for the "Well done, go on High". It's like closing one volume and opening another quite different. It is finishing school and entering life on the outside—an end, a beginning.

We are glad to go in a way—almost impatient to be off doing something. And yet it is not easy to pull away and go by one's self again. We leave rather reluctantly because we leave each other and our home for four of the happiest years of our lives. All we have enjoyed so much will soon be but a memory.

But 'tis well. We must go and we are ready. With an assurance that life's problems are but another form of college problems and the spirit of success in life is none other than the spirit of success in college, we go to to work, apart yet not alone, humble, but not afraid.

Class History

Storming the door of "Old Springfield" on September 14th came 150 worthy men seeking knowledge. We called ourselves worthy, but alas, we soon found that our worthy ways were not the way or ways of the majority, and we also found that there is considerable knowledge that can't be obtained between paper covers. However we were perfectly willing to have some of the rough corners polished off if it would make us seem collegiate.

"The Initiation", made us what we are to-day. We owe a deep feeling of gratitude to the worthy Sophs who carefully planned and labored to make the ceremony impressive. It was impressive and some carried scars around long afterwards who were as proud of them as the Germans were of the notable iron cross.

Revenge was sweet. It came just before the Freshman Banquet. We strung the Sophs along. That is, we captured the whole tyrant clan, tied them hand and foot in the "East Gym", and laid them out in 57 different positions. An Undertaker couldn't have done better, at least we thought they looked natural.

SPRINGFIELD

MASSASOIT

Then our chests began to swell, as well they might so that the tailors on Eastern Avenue reported a rushing business letting out vests, receiving in return, promissory notes.

The Class Banquet holds a warm spot in every man's heart. It was a "give and take proposition," that is, we paid for the delicious food but souvenirs turned up that could not be accounted for, I mean by the Hotel Authorities at Holyoke. After-dinner speeches were delivered of course, I mean after the last course, on far-reaching and delicate subjects which had never been treated before or since to our knowledge.

The "Cap Game" was rather disgusting ending as was officially announced, in a 0 to 0 tie which was rather discouraging as our heads had begun to expand or at least the caps didn't seem to fit and we hated to wear them over the extended period.

We came through with the interclass championships last year which perhaps shows some of our athletic prowess. We were equally superb or (rather) better navigators snatching the Water Sports Banner from the three other grasping classes.

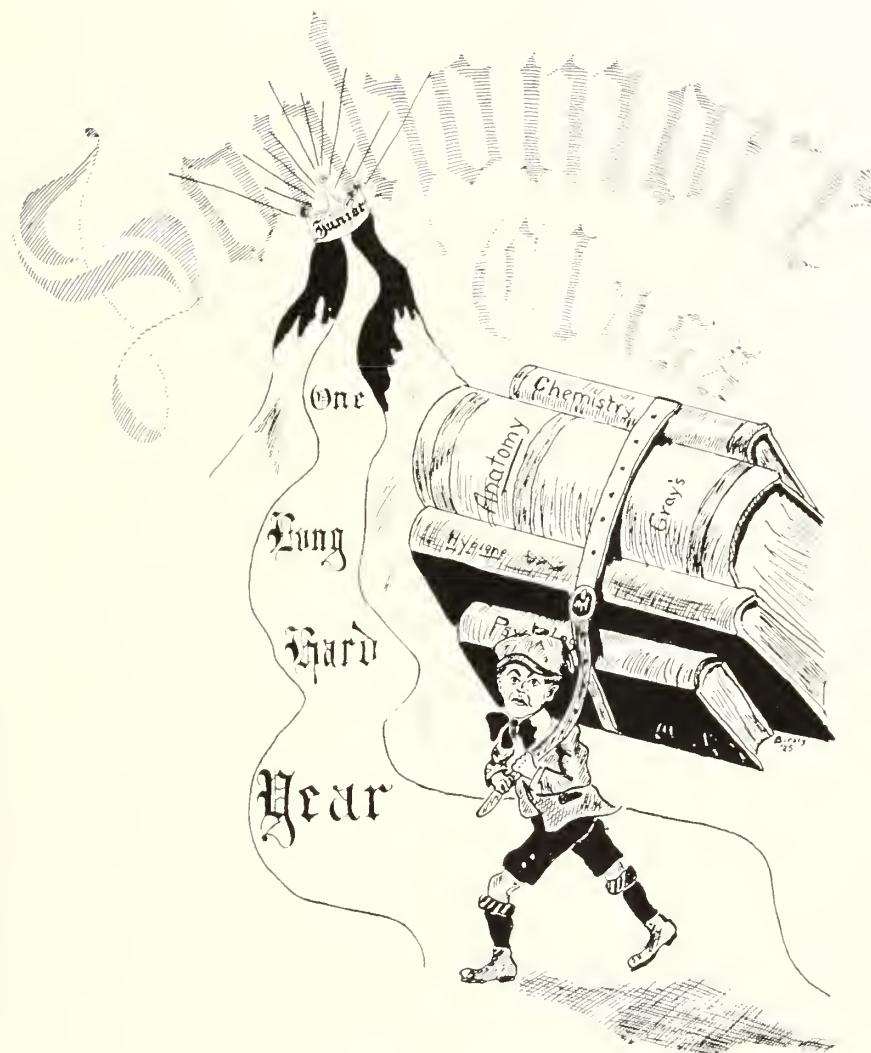

We have always attended strictly to business on all the Class Trips. Although perhaps we didn't arrive exactly on schedule time to all the lectures we always had a good excuse. On our Junior Trip we arose and retired at daylight. Our observation Trips were numerous covering many phases of activity not listed on the official chart. We truly gained a wealth of knowledge on this tour. We renewed old acquaintances of both sexes and gave all our bogus and Canadian Dimes to the "Under-ground Railroad," commonly called the "Sub-way".

We are looking forward to a great future. The class of '25 has always given Springfield its loyal support in every phase of activities. We can be justly proud of our record and we only hope that in the future we may be given a chance to display some of our gratitude in return for what our Alma Mater has done for us.

Class History

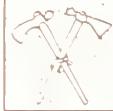

Now we are Sophomores! What a wonderful privilege it was to be the custodians of "the noble green caps", and what an honor it was to be released from being their trustful guardians!

When first we made our appearance in the realm of the great King Massasoit, we boasted of a strength of one hundred and forty peaceful men. Our peacefulness was not to last, for before many moons had arisen we were given our instructions and instilled with the "Springfield Spirit by the weight of our paddles in the hands of the noble and illustrious Sophomores.

But, alas! a sinister plot was laid against our neighbors, and in the still of the night we planted our banner on South Field. Our mettle was tried and established by successfully defending our banner bright against the onslaught of the Sophomores. But revenge was exceedingly sweet for them in the Cap Football Game, when we bowed to them to the tune of 23-6, thereby giving us the unasked for privilege of wearing the "green" for the remainder of the first two terms. Hostilities with our neighbors were brought to a close, when both classes dined in peace at the Union Banquet on the fifteenth of February, at the Hotel Kimball.

SPRINGFIELD

MASSASOIT

Time passed quickly, and again we came to the sheltering arms of "Old Springfield". Although our ranks had become a little thinned, we could still account for one hundred and ten trusties. Our first official duty was to lead the "green" in the proper paths, and instruct them as to their place amidst the ranks of Springfield men. They brought their necks to the paddles of the Sophomores, and were assimilated by the customary ceremonies.

In the annual Cap Football Game, they failed to defeat the Sophomores—they wear the "green" until the Spring. For the benefit of the upper classmen, we staged for them three class scraps. In the tug-o-war, we submitted ourselves to the "peaceful waters". The flag rush resulted in a victory for the Frosh, but they were made acquainted with the modern weapons of warfare, such as the "gas egg bombs", the liquid firehose, the truck tank, mass formation, etc. But when it came to deciding the honors of holding the Class Banquet unmolested, we decisively instructed the Frosh in the manners of wading in a "sea of mud" during the Cane Rush.

And not only has our class won recognition as participators in the various physical activities, but we have also established our mark through the realm of the White Arrow Club, which operates as a silent body in receiving visitors and extending to them the hospitality of our "Alma Mater".

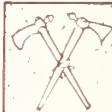

And as time draws on, and we in turn go forth, may we say as those before us have said, "May we be found not wanting in the strength and virtues of Springfield Men".

Class History

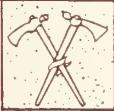

During the week of September 19th, there congregated at Springfield College about 150 "green" and sturdy freshmen. These fellows came from all over the continent and in their congregation will be found delegates or representatives of many foreign nations.

The first few days spent in Springfield are such that they will never be forgotten. While the upper classmen and Sophomores were most kind to us, each day we were reminded that we were still "green". Perhaps they were once, but hush!, put on the soft pedal.

The Freshmen informal initiation was "warmly" received by the Frosh. There is one consoling thought that remained with us that night. That is, our oppressors had to take the "ducking" with us. "Comrades in Arms".

There have been many historic battles between the under-classmen. The biggest "thriller" was the memorable battle of Kirkham Plains resulting in the fall of the 1926 class. To our Freshman Dean, we owe all. He saved the day by feeding the "starving 5000" "hot dogs" and sandwiches. The Freshman have during their course of study won 2 out of 3 fights, losing the cane rush, because the cane was too good a walking stick.

MASSASOIT

The class of 1927 has done well in the athletic world. The Freshmen won the interclass boxing championships and were runners-up in the basket ball tournament. The Freshman Varsity teams have proven themselves more successful than most classes in previous years. The football team with a very hard schedule to face came through with laurels. The Suffield game is one that will live long in our memories. It was played on a "sea of mud" and the best swimmers won. The basket ball quintet while getting away with a bad start ended their season in a whirl of glory when they defeated the fast Suffield five on their own court. The soccerites should be commended for their long string of victories. The "mer-men" while not winning the majority of their meets, have developed some excellent Varsity material for next year.

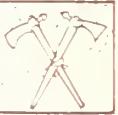

It has been said that "all good things come to him who waits". This is exceptionally true in the case of the Freshman class. In the first place, the class-banquet was not a success when we count numbers but when we ask the opinion of those who gathered 'round it certainly was complete in every detail. Secondly, our fellow students, the Sophs permitted us to dress once more as "white men" when we were allowed to remove our "green" at the close of the winter term.

Finally, as the year draws to a close we cannot but realize what an excellent leader we have had in our class president "Fritz" Fisher. "Fritz" whenever anything was to be done was always first to show the way. A great deal of our success as a class has been the result of his guiding influence and that of his fellow officers.

It is safe to say that the Frosh have found the "Springfield Spirit" contagious and shall in future years uphold the honor and traditions to the best of their ability.

The Junior Promenade is regarded as the most important social event in the college life of a student at Springfield College. On this occasion, the Junior Class has as its guests the Senior Class, and their friends.

The Prom activities commenced on Friday evening with a formal dance. Last Spring, for the first time, the dance was held off campus. The success of this venture will probably insure the continuance of the custom.

On Saturday morning, an "up-the-lake" breakfast is held. In the afternoon, tennis, baseball and informal dancing are enjoyed and in the evening the lure of the lake is felt and many couples enjoy the stars, the moon and the attraction of open water.

Further beauties of nature can be enjoyed in the neighboring countryside, for those who can stay over Sunday, by a motor trip through the Berkshires. While, for the more devout, special services are held in a local church.

Sports Receptions

Three seasonal events of great importance to those who pursue the pleasure of the Terpsichore are the Sport Receptions.

In the good old days, the presentation of athletic awards took place during the evening's festivities. With the advent of the Freshman Varsity Teams, a new scheme had to be tried. At first, the attempt was made to run two receptions each season, one for the Freshmen, and one for the upper classmen. This was not successful. Finally the plan was suggested which is now in vogue. Freshmen receive their numeral and upper classmen receive their letters during a special meeting in Chapel. In this way the event can be made much more impressive and, incidently, more time can be spent in dancing during the evening.

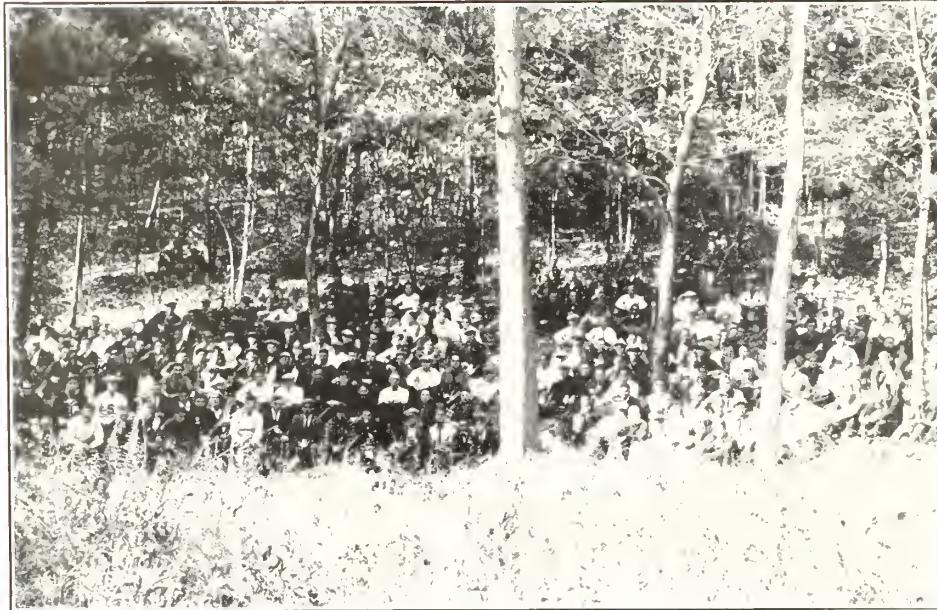

The Social Committee, in co-operation with the Physical Department Committee, conducts both the presentation and the dance. At the dance special favors are given to the ladies; vanity cases, pocket books, picture cases or leather-bound book ends, as was the case at the Fall Sports Reception. The programs contain pictures of the different teams for the season, the record of games played and the names of those who have won the coveted insignias.

At the Fall Sports Reception, the Varsity, Second and Freshmen Football Teams, the Varsity and Freshmen Soccer Teams and the Varsity and Freshmen Cross-Country Teams are listed. At the Winter Sports Reception, the Varsity and Freshmen Teams in Hockey, Swimming, Gymnastics, Basketball, Wrestling and the Second Basketball and Gymnastic Teams will be honored. Just before graduation, the Spring Sports Reception will be given to the Baseball, Track and Tennis Teams, both Freshmen and Varsity.

The Social Committee is to be commended for the high standard which has been maintained at all of these affairs.

The Annual Mountain Day

SOMETIMES, in the fall, there comes a day which seems to be made especially to the order of those whose pleasure it is to get out on the hills and walk and walk and walk. On such a day, there is a haziness on the horizon which is offset by a sharp tang in the air. The foliage is just beginning to turn color and the summer birds have started their long flight to the south. Such a day as this fell to the lot of the student body on the occasion of their annual mountain day, last autumn.

The faculty had declared a holiday from classes and the students gathered outside Woods Hall "rearin' to go." After the inevitable wait for auto trucks, the caravan finally got under way about eight thirty in the morning.

The procession, consisting of eight large motor trucks, with an escort of smaller fry varying in shape and distinction from "Cap" Adams' speed boat to Johnny Rasch's bicycle, wound its way through the city streets and thence out toward Chicopee and Holyoke.

Crossing the river at Holyoke, the expedition started along the road from South Hadley Falls to South Hadley. Here we came upon ground familiar to many of the members of Springfield's unrecognized athletic team. To these worthies, the towers of Mount Holyoke College loomed up like familiar landmarks. We were now on the stamping ground of the "Saturday nighters". Imagine the joy of these members on learning that the fair students of Mount Holyoke were also observing a Mountain Day! Stopping for a moment, to announce our arrival, we again started on our way and finally arrived at our place for refreshments, Lithia Springs.

SPRINGFIELD

While the commissariat department was completing arrangements, the energetic souls indulged in the initiation of the unsuspecting into the Society of ZaZas, and the less peppy, reclined at ease along the gentle slopes of the foothills of the Mount Holyoke Range.

After the meal supplied by Chef Hall, consisting of steaks, bread and butter, cheese, biscuits, an apple and hot coffee, the student body listened to a description by Dr. Kirkham of the geologic development of the mountain range which they were soon to explore. Professor Cheney outlined different routes which were available and the men thus advised separated into groups each to follow the dictates of his own preference.

One body headed in the direction of Amherst, where they visited Amherst College and Massachusetts Agricultural College. Another group made Northampton their objective. Here they inspected the Hospital for the Insane. Or, perhaps, it was Smith College. There is no accounting for tastes. For some reason or other, Mount Holyoke College did not attract as much interest as it did the previous year. Probably this was because the boys were waylaid by pupils from that institution, who did not want their campus torn up by the crowd of men who are so interested in studying the architecture of places of learning. At least, there were a lot of the girls ranging around the hills and it is rumored that there were several parties who enjoyed the refining influence of the feminine. Some men, by force of necessity, made immediate tracks for Springfield. Others took a long jaunt which included Northampton, the Devil's Punch Bowl, the Dinosaur tracks, a supper in the woods and a journey by foot to Holyoke, where the trolley for Springfield was boarded.

Whatever trips were made, the individuals in the different groups were of the opinion that their choice was best. The consensus of opinions was "that a good time was had by all".

INITIATIONS

SHORTLY after the class of 1927 arrived on campus they were outfitted with the typical green cap. The object of this badge is two-fold. First, it gives the new man a sense of belonging. Second, and very important, it makes the Freshmen conspicuous, so that he can be studied, graded and catalogued by the upper classmen.

The entering men are classified under three headings. There are the brothers of men who have been on campus before. Of course they are familiar with everything that is expected of them and therefore any shortcomings are severely dealt with. Then, there are the men who "know their stuff". They speak when they are spoken to. They are unobtrusive. They do not in any way give the impression that they are tin gods or that now that they have arrived the College with profit by an unprecedented increase of prestige and affluence. The third type is the group that are known as "wise guys". They are everything that the second group are not. Furthermore, they are meat for the hungry maws of those who administer justice.

Of course, each group must pass through the ritual of the initiation. This is necessary from a psychological standpoint. When one has had a common embarrassing experience with another, there is a close bond of friendship and understanding between the common sufferers. That is the only reason that we have initiations. At least, that is the only psychological reason, when we except those reasons which are more or less personal.

However in the case of brothers of former students and those of the "wise guy" group, the punishment has to be adjusted to fit the crime. This necessitates the selection of a specialized group known as the Chain Gang. This is the organization to which particular attention is paid.

In order to keep the whole class humble, the members of this illustrious sect were not named until the time for execution had arrived. Previous to that time, all of the new men were paraded down to the Municipal Buildings to be welcomed by Mayor Leonard of the City of Springfield. Here they took the oath of allegiance to Springfield. At the conclusion of that part of the program, Nature could refrain no longer and she shed moist tears at the thought of so many innocents being led to the slaughter. This temporarily disorganized affairs and in the rush for shelter, the Royal Chariot of King Massasoit and his henchman the Most High Scribe was lost in the shuffle. However, the melee was continued when the warriors had regathered in the West Gymnasium. Here the entire class went "through the gauntlet" of bludgeons and finished up by a grand finale on the "devil carpet". They were then permitted to rest the tender parts against the hard board bleachers. From this seat of sorrow, the offending members of the class were called to judgment. No man knew whether it was to be his fate to answer the summons next, or not.

MASSASOIT

As the names were told off, the miserable wretches came forth and "did their stuff". One man chased butterflies all evening. Another was left to the tender mercies of the voracious Royal Rooster. A third became intricated in the mysteries of taking sticky fly paper from one hand to another, while his mate digged and delved in the barren soil to find worms for another to bait his line to catch whales from a pail.

And thus as the evening wore on, the delinquents were put through their paces. At the termination of these painful but necessary incidentals, every one joined in the repast of doughnuts and cider. The Freshmen mingled with their superiors in wiping away any pangs of ill-feeling which might have arisen during the festivities of the evening. The Freshmen had the satisfied feeling that they were almost Springfield Men.

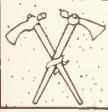

Almost, but not quite, for there was still the Formal Initiation to go through. On the following evening, the Frosh were ushered into the Gymnasium, where the workings of the Student Association were gone over. Graduate Secretary Jones introduced the different Cabinet members who each gave a brief resume of the activities of his specific department. The Physical Department presentation was especially impressive as each man was given an opportunity to see representatives of the different teams, attired in the costume appropriate for the sport for which he stood. Following, this the class of 1927, tried out their knowledge of the tunes and words of some of the college songs. The success of this effort was rather dubious, but, at least, it made the men realize that they had not learned enough to entitle them to ask for options on the college property. The new men were then given an opportunity to hear Dr. Doggett, Dr. Kirkham and Professor Burr, who instructed them as to the ideals and the aims of Springfield College. Walter Eekerson, secretary of the Junior class, then welcomed the incoming group on behalf of its sister class. The evening's entertainment closed with a light buffet luncheon, during which the initiates socialized with the Faculty and their wives and were thus enabled to get an insight into the personalities of the men who were to lead them in the paths of learning.

Thus, the history of one more class started within the portals of Springfield College.

Commencement Exercises

It has been said that there are three outstanding events in a man's life: his birth, his marriage and his death. To the chosen few comes one other time . . . Commencement.

Commencement week started for the class of 1923 at Springfield College on Sunday, June 10. At that time, they gathered in a Fellowship meeting where they were addressed by Professor Elmer Berry, who pointed out to them some of the difficulties and dangers which would beset their paths "out in the world". Dr. Doggett, Professor Hickox and Professor Bowne also said a few words.

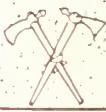

In contrast to the serious aspect of such ceremonies, the Spring Sports Reception on Wednesday night brought with it "jest and youthful jollity".

Continuing the holiday attitude, the visitors enjoyed the Water Sports, the Strawberry Festival and the Canoe Carnival, on Thursday afternoon and evening. In the Water Sports, which were supervised by Professor Affleck and L. Amann, the class of 1925 were victors with a score of 43. Their nearest opponent, 1926, scored 38, while the seniors made 19. These events were followed by one of Chef Hall's famous "strawberry festivals". It was quite the festive. As soon as dusk had come, the canoe carnival started. By that time, the banks of Lake Massasoit were lined by a mass of humanity. It is estimated that between five and six thousand people viewed the "most complete spectacle since the custom was started in 1907". Professor and Mrs.

SPRINGFIELD

MASSASOIT

Hickox and Professor and Mrs. Wade had a great deal of difficulty in declaring the winner, but finally the creation of W. P. Ashbrook and M. Cannon was awarded the prize. Their design consisted of a house and garden built on two canoes. John J. LeBrun whose craft was disguised as a gondola won second prize, while R. McCollom's "windmill" gained third honors. O. H. Snowden, C. V. Herron and P. J. Fuhr received honorable mention. In the competition for unique productions, H. G. Adams with his trained hippopotamus was first and Ed. Bullock and Dale Lash, in a miniature battleship were second. Charles Tousley, chairman of the Social Committee, superintended the whole affair.

The real business of the week, however, occurred on Friday. An Alumni breakfast was held at 8 a. m. and at 10 a. m. the Alumni Association convened under President Raymond Kaighn '93. At ten-thirty, the class-day exercises started under the direction of Hartley Cross. The class history was read by H. A. Mountain and the class prophecy by Leland Stacey. The originality of both of these presentations was refreshing. Carl V. Herron presented the class poem, which was especially commended by the faculty as a work of Art. The Key of knowledge was handed down to the oncoming senior class president, J. G. Lang, Hartley Cross doing the honors. Doctor Gilkey completed the indoor exercises by an inspiring talk. The class then adjourned to the open air where Dale Lash led in the dedication of the class tree and Robert Stone officiated at the presenting of the class sidewalk.

After dinner, the seniors, attired in cap and gown, were marshalled by Professor Hyde, who headed the procession to the gymnasium. Here the seniors experienced "the thrill that comes once in a life time". They got their college diplomas. On this occasion, Dr. Frank A. Vanderlip addressed the assembly on "The Practical Value of International Good Will". Sixty-six men were graduated, four men were granted master's degrees in Humanities, and two received master's degrees in Physical Education.

The new Physio-Therapy hospital was then opened and the keys were formally handed over to Dr. Doggett by Mr. C. B. Potter. Dr. Ballentine presided at a short dedication ceremony.

The memorable events of the week were concluded at the Commencement Dinner. Professor J. T. Bowne was the guest of honor. Mr. Kaighn acted as toastmaster. Speeches were given by Dr. Seerley, by alumni from every fifth class, by Professor Bowne, Colonel B. A. Franklin, Mr. A. E. Metzdorf and Professor Moises Saenz of Mexico. A radio message of greeting was received from the alumni at the Y. M. C. A. conference in Austria.

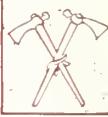

Professor Bowne was made the recipient of a gift and a bound set of letters of appreciation. Mr. L. E. Hawkins, the retiring secretary of the College, received a scroll with the signatures of all alumni present. Class-president A. J. Kaiser '23, on behalf of his fellows, presented Dr. Doggett with $10,000 insurance bonds to apply on the endowment fund. The affair closed with singing of "We're Going to Leave Old Massasoit" and "The Alma Mater".

Verily, it was a large week. As one of the men said, "I wouldn't have missed it for a million dollars, and I wouldn't go through it again for two million."

Class Scraps

NEW step in the evolution of class scraps was made this year. For the first time, the underclassmen battled in supervised conflict, and oh boy! what battles they were. The first set-to took the form of a tug-of-war. The classes, under the direction of the senior members of the Senate, adjourned to the cove beside the railroad track.

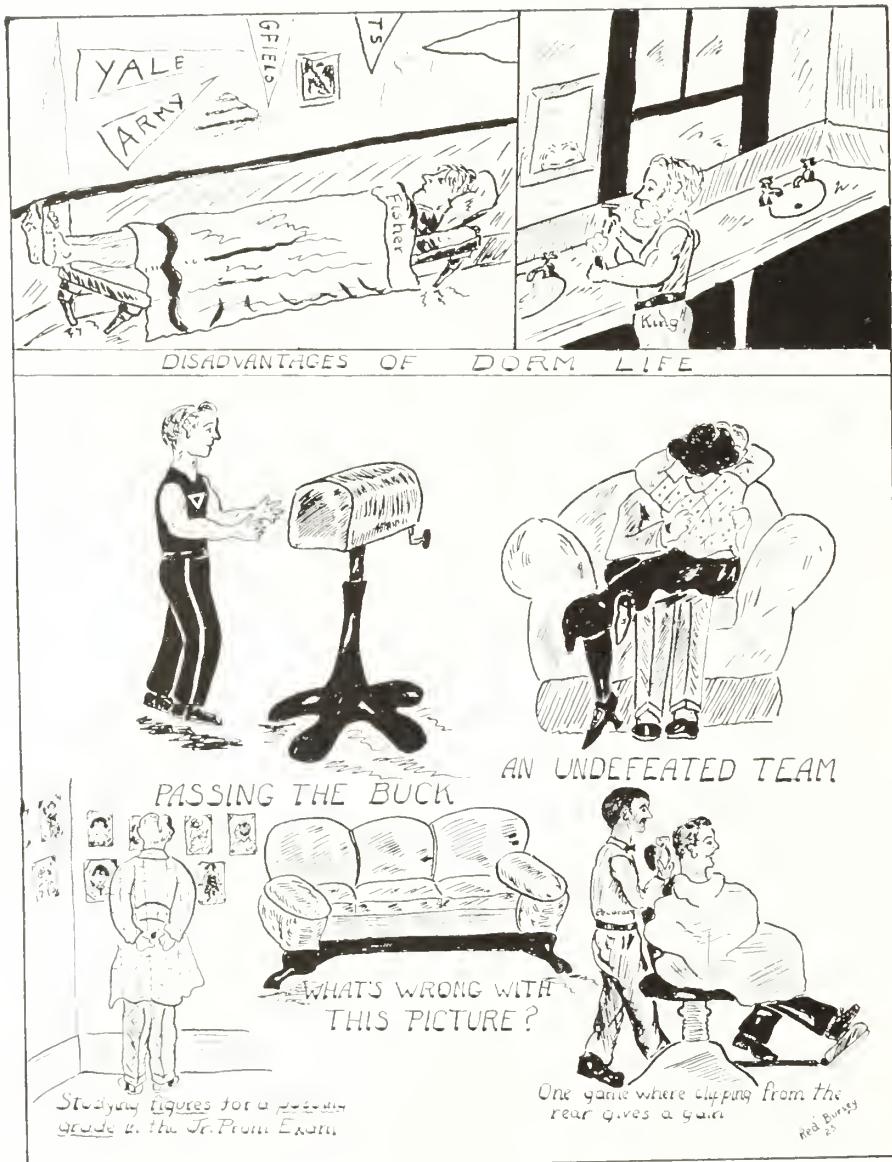

A rope was stretched from side to side. The Sophomores were arrayed on the east side of the cove where the footing was firmer, the Freshmen opposed them in sandy anchorage. A handkerchief was dropped and the battle was on. For a few moments, neither side had an advantage and then as the Frosh sank deeper and deeper into the soil they became rooted and the bewildered Sophomores slowly realized that their efforts were futile. The inspired Greentops, with the desperation of despair and the goads of the sympathetic Juniors drumming in their ears rose up in their might and yanked their opponents through the muck and mire to the other side. They then took up their battle-song, "How Dry I Am" while they marched with the rope to Woods Hall, much to the chagrin of the disgruntled but helpless Sophomores.

The second fight will go down in history as the famous "Battle of Kirkham Plains". The scene of conflict was the field behind the library and it was here that the Freshmen defended their flag against the onslaughts of the Sophs. This defense was made possible by the consideration of Dean Kirkham of the Freshmen, who prevented annihilation from starvation of the ranks of 1927, by smuggling in foodstuffs to the beleaguered defenders. When the second year men realized that a "war of attrition" was not feasible they battled, and in the words of Tennyson:

"Some were sunk and many were shattered, and so could fight us no more.

The Sophomores tried everything: rotten eggs, fire hose, auto truck, and moral suasion, but time was against them and the fight ended with the Gonfalon of the Green flaunting the sensibilities of the second-yearlings.

The third and last fight brought sweet revenge to the Sophomores. The contest was a cane-rush, in which five canes were dragged along a field. The contest started on a signal and representatives from each class, two on each cane, pulled toward their classmates. Then, on a second signal, these classmates rushed in and continued the good work. This contest determined the banquet honors and, as luck would have it, occurred on a day when, to say the least, the weather had been damp. The result was, that by superior technique, the Sophs gained the initial advantage. This advantage was sufficient to insure victory and the men of 1926 won the traditional honors and the right to have their banquet before the lowly Frosh could indulge.

THE past year in the history of the Student Association will go down as an epoch-making one. An effort was made to concentrate all of activities on campus in the Student Association. With this end in view, the Student Senate was organically affiliated with the Cabinet of the Association. Under its jurisdiction, supervised class scraps were held for the first time. This provided all the desired primitive thrills and also eliminated the usual trouble caused by guerrilla warfare during the class banquet month. Another outstanding event in the past year was start of a fund for a new Student Building. Local campus talent was provided at the Capitol Theatre and a percentage of the proceeds for the week was earned for the Student Association. The plan of a Student Congress was continued for this year but, on account of misinterpretation of the Constitution due to lack of clear phrasing, a deadlock between Congress and Cabinet resulted. However, this difficulty will undoubtedly be straightened out and a clear policy will result.

Plans were inaugurated during the past year, whereby the Faculty will provide a Graduate Manager of Athletics. In this way, more stress can be put on athletics and greater results along this line are hoped for.

Including, as it does, some one hundred and thirty officers, the Student Association provides a vehicle for the expression of theory gained in classroom. The eleven departments of activity give a choice of effort that should meet the requirements of the most diverse group and no man should neglect to avail himself of the opportunity for training in at least one of these groups.

THE SENATE is the official judicial and legislative body, seeking to act as a intermediary between the student body and the faculty. It judges on cases of breach of discipline or disharmony with the ideals of Springfield College. It may also legislate new standards of conduct. The individual members are also obligated to do personal interviewing with men who are not living up to the high ideals of Springfield. This body instructs the incoming class regarding the requirements of this institution as concerns its members.

During the year, the Senate has become organically connected with the Student Association. This was done on the recommendation of the Senate of last year. It was felt that with such an arrangement, the support of the Student Association could be brought to bear upon a situation where other methods than coercion had failed.

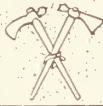

This body consists of five Seniors and four Juniors. They meet once each week. The President of the Senate is a member of the Student Association Cabinet.

Congress

HE ORDER to overcome the unwieldy process, in which the monthly business meetings of the Student Association were conducted by the whole membership, the Congress was instituted. By a vote of the Cabinet, it was arranged that ten per cent of the student body should meet monthly to transact business. This group is 40 per cent Senior, 30 per cent Junior, 20 per cent Sophomore and 10 per cent Freshman.

This plan, through a weakness in the constitution, has not been an unqualified success. However, the business of the Association has been much facilitated and as soon as some difficulties with regard to phrasing and interpretation are straightened out there is every reason to believe that the Congress will function at maximum efficiency.

The White Arrow Club

TRUE to its ideals, the White Arrow Club has assisted visitors in their relations with the College. Their first work was a letter to each incoming Freshman, giving directions upon arrival and carrying a friendly spirit of welcome. Then, as far as possible each Freshman was met at the train and given an intimate and cordial introduction to the College. During this one very busy period and all through the year the members have assisted with visitors and speakers, meeting trains and acting as guides. The one activity most appreciated by outsiders is undoubtedly the meeting and caring for visiting teams. In all this voluntary work some member was always able to assist the College in its relations to visitors. May the members each year uphold the standard of service set by the present members.

HE object of the Deputation Teams is to create an interest in the fundamentals of the Christian religion and to give men an opportunity to express these fundamentals in communities where need arises. The work of the teams consists of setting up and operating week-end programs along socially religious lines in rural communities. A second activity is providing speakers for churches, young people's societies and boys' conferences.

One pastor in a rural community made the remark that nothing finer had ever been done for his church than that accomplished by the visiting deputation men from Springfield College.

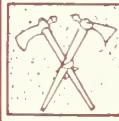

The activities conducted by these men were as follows:

Speakers at societies of young people, 13. Older Boys' Conference, 1. Week-end trips, 4. Church services, 5. Socials, 5. This makes a total of 28 trips, as compared to 15 of last year.

Kappa Delta Pi. Honor Society

HE wearer of the triangle key with the Greek letters Kappa, Delta and Pi on it has the distinction of belonging to a unique organization. The granting of honor keys in most institutions means that the receiver of the award is proficient in one specific line of endeavor. This is not the case in granting the Kappa Delta Pi emblem, for the aim of this organization is "encouraging the development of scholarship, professional capacity, and personal character, in a symmetrical and winning personality, among its members and the students of the College."

In 1915, the Alpha Chapter of Kappa Delta Pi was formed. Beta Chapter was instituted at the Chicago Y. M. C. A. College, in 1921 and a permanent national organization on June 30, 1921, at College Camp on Lake Geneva.

The method of election to this group is as follows: A list of those who are academically eligible is posted. From this list, each member of the senior class voted for ten members, each member of the faculty votes for ten men. The academic standing is noted and those men with the lowest score of position on the three lists are made members of the society.

Thus, it can be seen that a senior who is a member of the Kappa Delta Pi Society must stand high in Character, Capacity and Culture. He must have a high academic rating, he must have the confidence of his classmates, he must be a participant in athletics or in other student activities.

Dramatics

THE first efforts of the new committee were turned towards the production of College Vawdvils. This was a new type of performance for the College but when many upperclassmen of keen interest and known ability offered their assistance, the success of the show was assured. The Student Association is indebted to Mr. William Syner for his assistance in putting on several dancing acts. One of these featured Miss Rea Martins who has pleased us so many times since her first appearance in "21". Robert Stone delighted the audience with several solos. Can we ever forget Bob's "On The Road to Mandalay".

Through the influence of Mr. A. W. Jones we were able to get Mr. Frank Guy Armitage. Mr. Armitage strengthened the performance immensely by his classic interpretation of "Old Grandfather Scrooge" and other well-known Dicken's characters.

Mr. T. A. Gibson's clever management of the finances made it possible to turn a substantial sum to the Social Committee for the Canoe Carnival.

With the withdrawal of Faculty assistance in dramatics the winter of 1923-'24 saw an experiment made. Through the influence of Mr. A. W. Jones, a coach was found in the person of Mr. W. T. Simpson of West Springfield. Mr. Simpson's experience had included Broadway Theatrical Productions and we were very fortunate to enlist his interest in Springfield College.

Mr. Simpson chose for us two classic plays by noted authors. These were the "Man Who Married a Dumb Wife" by Anatole France and "The Hour Glass" by William Butler Yeats.

No campus coach ever gave more unsparingly of time and effort nor withdrew less awarded. The shows were given in fine style to two very appreciating audiences. The introduction of Miss Nellie Van Deene as the Dumb Wife at the last minute strengthened the cast and carried the comedy off in a scream of perfection. Mr. Homer Allen played opposite Miss Van Deene with the assurance of the professional. No weakness was to be found in a cast too large to mention.

The "Hour Glass" followed, with Mr. Harold Adams as the theme reader. Mr. Albert O. Truman's portrayal of the personality of "The Fool" was the commanding incident of the evening.

Mr. McKillop, as Bridget, and the two little Walker children were much enjoyed by the audience, as was the work of Kenneth Williams, as "The Angel".

Mr. Stanley Clevenger besides taking one of the leading speaking parts in the "Dumb Wife" contributed very materially to the success of the performance in a mechanical way. It was largely through his efforts and personal direction that the scenery, so intricate yet so realistic was in place.

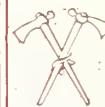

In Mr. William T. Simpson we found someone capable and willing to meet our every need. Mr. Simpson did not confine himself to coaching. He aided materially in the designing of the scenery and electrical effects. He also arranged for the costumes and furnished some of the properties from his own trunks.

The Hillebrandt Masonic Club

Up until 1916 there was no organized Masonic Club in school, but just a group of fellows that met for purely social reasons. As the number of Masons in school increased, however, the need was felt for something bigger, and so accordingly in 1916 the Springfield College Masonic Club was organized, in order that the Masons in school could meet fraternally and become more familiar with the principles of Masonry. In February, 1922, a constitution was drawn up, and the name of the club was changed to the Herman Hillebrandt Masonic Club of Springfield College, in loving memory of Brother Hillebrandt of the class of 1919. There are at present 39 members in the Club.

With such a variety of nationalities in the club, it follows that the tolerant attitude of international brotherhood is assured.

This is one of the main objectives of the club, to provide a social and educational program for the men who are, more or less "strangers in a strange land." "Friendship" is the motto of the club. With such a program and with such a motto, much can be done to overcome the national bitterness which is now rampant in world affairs.

Music Clubs

It is not at all infrequently that the peace and quiet which ordinarily reigns in the dormitory is disturbed by sweet strains of music, harmonious and otherwise. Sometimes this proceeds from the "Dear Old Pal" augmented quartette in the lower hall, while at other moments the soothing strains are a product of one of Moore's victrolas, purchased at a dollar down, a dollar a week.

But these are only supplementary bits of talent, strongly suggestive of better, or at least more original, harmony to be found upon closer observation. And there is! For is not the peaceful chapel-time slumber of the dormitory residents oftentimes disturbed by some last minute rehearsal of the College Quartette? And is not the Glee Club to be heard many an evening, vacillating between low X and high Jinks; while the late Sunday sleepers dream of some celestial orchestra which turns out to be the Brass Quartette tuning up?

Of course, the College Orchestra really is Bob Morgan's Jazz Hounds, to whose melodies the diners at Woods Hall sing and the social wrestlers in the gymnasium dance. When necessity demands, such as at Initiation or at a Chapel Music Revue, W. B. Thomas presents an augmented orchestra for the rendition of more classical productions. So much talent has been discovered in this way that the Committee is very hopeful of putting a band into the field next year.

As to the Brass Quartette, consisting of two cornets, a French horn and trombone, this is a new organization on campus. It has worked largely in co-operation with the Glee Club, and shows great promise for the future.

The College Quartette is one of the finest male quartettes having represented the college in recent years. It, too, has worked in conjunction with the Glee Club during the year, although it has also been of appreciable service in other college activities. Under the management of H. W. Russell, a fine repertoire has been worked out.

The Glee Club is, of course, the logical center of all the musical activity on campus. During the fall term, it was coached by Professor F. S. Hyde, after which V. D. Furnadjeff '24 took over the directing. With the aid of the other music clubs on campus, together with certain individual talent, a fine program has been presented at every concert. Under the supervision of Manager F. M. Bass, a schedule of ten concerts has been worked up. These included a radio concert, two at the Capitol Theater during Springfield College Week, one at Buckingham School, Thompsonville, West Springfield, Mittineague and two at Holyoke, besides the annual Home Concert. The big concert of the season was given at the Hotel Nonotuck, Holyoke, being followed by a dance; which is the happy ending to a concert hoped for by every member of the music clubs.

Literary Department

THE Literary Department seeks to supplement the curriculum for those who desire improvement in forensic and literary endeavors. To this end, students are given the opportunity of joining a literary society in which regular practice can be had in debating, oratory and in addressing audiences on a prescribed subject. Further, those who have aptitude along literary lines are invited to offer their services in the editorial and news work of the Springfield Student, the weekly publication of the college.

At the present time, there are but two literary societies on the campus. It was felt that, rather than have numerous non-functioning organizations, it would be better to concentrate on two groups. By this means, keener competition is promoted and the work of the societies can be better co-ordinated. In inter-society competition, for instance, the Weidensall Society took the honors in the Editorial Contest, while the International Lyceum won out in the debate. Plans are being formulated for an inter-society oratorical contest which will decide the winner.

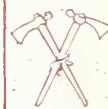

The Editorial Contest is a new endeavor. Acting under the auspices of the editorial board and the managing staff of the Springfield Student, the two societies set up the editorial page of the weekly paper. A handsome silver cup, the gift of Mr. Vezina, was awarded to the Weidensall Society by a two to one vote of the judges.

In the department of intercollegiate debating, activity increased during the past season. In a dual debate with Clark University, both Springfield teams were defeated on the question, "Resolved, that United States should enter the World Court, subject to the Hughes reservations." Debating the affirmative side of the same question we were victorious against Massachusetts Agricultural College. The team will meet Connecticut Agricultural College during the spring and will defend the same question.

The Student Handbook, or "Freshman Bible" is also published by this department.

We were returned winners in the inter-society debate but were less successful in the Editorial Contest.

EIDENSALL is one of the two Literary Societies remaining on the Campus this year. We started the season with a new aim which was to give more thought to the cultural and literary side of college life. We were obliged to get a new critic this year due to the inability of Professor Campbell to attend our meetings. We were fortunate in securing Mrs. Doggett, who consented to act in that capacity and we owe her much for her valuable work.

Weidensall was successful in the Vezina Cup contest in Editorial Writing as we succeeded in winning the Cup which was competed for for the first time this year. We were not quite as successful in the inter-society debate although we made a good showing.

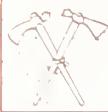

This year, the ninth year of Weidensall on the Campus, has been a very successful one. We have our membership quota filled with active members from each class and are able to look forward to another successful season next year.

The Springfield Student

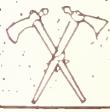

THE Springfield Student first appeared on the Campus in January 1909. At that time, it appeared in connection with the Association Seminary. Its reception was so cordial that, in 1910, it became a separate publication. It was published monthly at that time and it portrayed as accurately as possible the student life at the Training School. In 1916, another change was made and the Student became a weekly publication. The final step in the evolution of the present day product was the enlarging of the paper to the present size.

The paper is written, edited and managed entirely by undergraduates. During the past year, the standard of the written work has been raised and the objective of the managing staff has been such that the operating deficit has been materially decreased. The alumni subscriptions have been greatly increased.

A new policy, that of awarding certificates to all men who give a year's service, was instituted. Also, the senior members of the staff were awarded gold pins.

The policy of the Student is to confine, as closely as possible, its activities to those things which directly affect students, faculty and alumni of Springfield. This means that The Student is a medium of expression of campus life, in which the sentiment of the student body and faculty is expressed.

The Handbook Staff

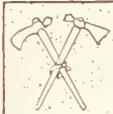

The Student Handbook, familiarly known as the Freshman Bible, is compiled in order to give the new man an insight into the intricacies of the organization of the Student Association. From the Handbook he also gets the college yells, the songs, and a list of the traditions of Springfield College. It is expected that the new men will have a working knowledge of these three fundamentals shortly after his arrival. Besides these fundamentals, there are listed the different teams, giving the schedules of the more important, the personnel of the coaching squads, the captains and the managers. The controlling bodies of the campus are explained. The curricula, a list of the faculty, Freshman Cap regulations, interclass scrap rules, eligibility requirements, normal work system are included. A church directory, the honor system outline and a list of dependable business firms are also given. In fact, the staff strives to give the Freshman enough information to get him started in the right direction in all lines of his college life activities.

HIS year the policy of the Literary Committee with regard to inter-collegiate debating expanded considerably. The season included three debates, one of them a dual debate. The first debate was of this character, against the Clark University on the question, "Resolved, the United States should enter the World Court, subject to the Hughes proposals." The Springfield men confronted two teams of unquestioned ability. Owing to this fact and because Dr. Esenwein, the coach, was unable to act on account of illness, the team went down to a double defeat. Spurred on, rather than discouraged, by this reverse the team later met the Massachusetts Agricultural College and defeated them in a hotly contested debate on the affirmative side of the same question. As the Massasoit goes to press, the debaters are competing in the final meet against the Connecticut Agricultural College, when they again defend the affirmative side of the World Court question.

A charter was obtained from the state and is now in the library, giving the names of the original members of the Corps. The purpose of the organization is twofold: First, to teach men to swim so that they may in the time of necessity save their own lives; and, second, to teach men the art of rescuing others who may be in danger.

The Corps has developed from the small beginning, until today there are one hundred and thirteen men who have successfully completed tests. Of these, over half are examiners.

This organization is part of a national one, which has a total of nearly forty-five thousand members. Over nine thousand of these are in New England. The Springfield College Corps rates high among the organizations of the country, both as regards numbers and the quality of work done.

Varsity Baseball 1923

ATEAM which loses 12 out of 15 games played, in any sport, would ordinarily not take up much space on the "heavy" side of the sporting sheets. However, Springfield is proud of her 1923 baseball sons for playing the game for all there was in it and continuing through a disappointing season. Several games were safely "tucked away" as the saying goes, only to be lost in the final innings. Many bad "breaks" plus that indescribable "something" which similarly affects many star combinations, in a way explains the team's showing.

There is a sad aspect to the story of the team's record and it is mentioned here not as a reprimand or criticism but for the purpose of avoiding a recurrence. The student body was thoroughly in back of the team at the start but as the season progressed and the number of losses increased, there was a notable lack of the proper spirit which is especially necessary to bolster up the players on a losing team and make them keep going. Nobody can do his best in college life "absolutely alone". When the boys come off the field with their heads bowed, it is the pat on the back that makes them want to go out strong the next time. Let us hope that the season's record will serve as a good object lesson for the future.

At the start Coach Berry was handicapped by the loss of three of the famous "midget" infield of 1922, and Crooks in the catching end. Merriman, LaBree, and Rhodes filled out the infield with the reliable Captain "Chic" Maynard back on first base in spite of a lame leg, the after effect of a fracture sustained during the summer of 1922. Simmons, Sturm, Norfeldt, and Smith did the outfield work and Shellenberger did a turn at almost every position. Bearse and Mountain drew down most of the pitching assignments.

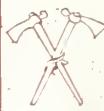

The season opened with a rather listless game with Wesleyan at Pratt Field which the visitors won easily. On the following Friday at Pratt Field Springfield had Dartmouth trimmed by the score of 5 to 4 in the 8th inning, only to make seven errors in the final frame, giving the visitors 4 runs and the game. Syracuse then took the Red-White tossers into camp at Pratt Field, shutting them out by the score of 3 to 0.

Everybody around these parts was satisfied that three losses in a row was enough and when the Conn. Aggies came here for the next game we were ripe for a win. Berry's men outhit the visitors 11 to 9 and won handily. The return game with Syracuse was called off account of rain thus robbing us of the opportunity to even our score with the Orange team. Colgate's strong team took our measure at Hamilton, outplaying our men in every department.

Harvard probably had many bitter memories of the 1922 game which the Red-White team took from them and with the aid of their star pitcher beat us with little difficulty. In the next game at Pratt Field Colby and Springfield each made seven hits but the Maine boys' hitting was more timely, and with the aid of several Springfield errors gave them the game.

Springfield then journeyed to Middletown ready to avenge its first-game defeat at the hands of Wesleyan. However, the Methodists grabbed three runs in the first frame and from then on were never headed. Back at Pratt Field again we took Providence into camp by the score of 4 to 3 in a hair-raising tenth inning finish, the winning run coming over on a hit by Johnny Merriman. The team then went to Worcester and was soundly drubbed by Holy Cross.

Four runs in the second inning of the Trinity game was enough for the Red-White tossers, this being our third and last victory of the season.

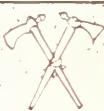

Bearse pitched the entire game allowing the Nutmeggers only six scattered hits. Conn. Aggies then squared its account with Berry's men by taking the return game played at Storrs.

Springfield then played Boston College two games in one week, taking a bad beating in the first game at Boston, 14 to 0, but putting up a stubborn fight in the second at Pratt Field, which the visitors won by the score of 3 to 0.

The season closed with the Holy Cross game at League Park which the Purple took by the score of 3 to 1.

Varsity Track 1923

SPRINGFIELD was represented in track athletics by a very well balanced team. When the men began to work out in the wintry breezes around Pratt Field early in April, eleven veterans of the 1922 squad were missing due to graduation and other reasons. Around a nucleus composed of Capt. Oosting, Converse, Ashbrook, and Tousley, Coach Otto proceeded to build his winning team. To be sure this was quite a strong "club" to start with, but not by any means large enough to win track meets in these days of balanced teams and the lessening power of individual stars. In this re-building task the coach was well supplied with raw material from the 1922 Freshman team.

The team opened the season with a victory over Wesleyan at Middletown. It will be remembered that these same teams battled through a hectic meet on Pratt Field in 1922 which also resulted in a win for the Red-White speedsters by the same score 68-67....a tough score for any team to lose by, but a safe winning margin nevertheless. The time in the sprints was not up to standard due to the condition of the track and the earliness of the season. However, Tousley's javelin throw of 150 ft. $7\frac{1}{2}$ in. which broke the Wesleyan field record by about 5 ft. deserves mention here. Also, Corbin's slashing finish in the half mile in which he nosed out two Wesleyan men at the tape, furnished the real thrill of the meet.

Manager "Bud" Fisher experienced much difficulty in arranging a satisfactory schedule and after the Intercollegiates the meet with R. P. I. May 26th closed the season. Oosting won both the century and 220-yard dashes and Tousley won the broad jump and javelin throw.

Capt.-Elect Tousley was high point man for the season scoring 23 points; Oosting was second with 20; Ashbrook third with 14.

E. I. A. A. Meet

The next meet for Otto's charges was the Eastern Intercollegiates May 12th at Pratt Field. Getting back to his former "Intercollegiate consistency" the weatherman greeted the occasion with an all-day rain. The muddy track and field were drawbacks, but the performance of the athletes was creditable nevertheless. Springfield finished second to Boston College, fourth consecutive season winner, the latter scoring 46 points to our our 32. Northeastern University was a rather dangerous third with 28 points.

The Red-White point winners were Oosting, sprints; Clark, 440; Kissler, h. Lurdles; Zimmerman, 1. hurdles; Chase, h. jump; Tousley, b. jump and javelin; Cole, b. jump; Ashbrook, pole vault; Morr and Allen, shot put; Bullock and Deming, hammer throw; Beukema, discus.

The showing of Oosting and Converse in the dashes was quite a disappointment to many Red-White followers. However, it must be remembered that the track conditions were far from good and our sprinters were unfortunate in drawing very wet lanes. Clark did some nice running to turn in a third against such a classy field.

The fact that Springfield placed third, although scoring only one first place through Tousley's javelin throw, is sufficient indication that Coach Otto was successful in turning out a good scoring team.

Varsity Football 1923

COACH HICKOX held Spring practice periods for the football candidates and quite a number worked out in the hot sun. Regular Fall practice began about ten days before school opened and the hard work got under way at once. Ten men of the crack 1922 eleven were lost by graduation and the coach's task of building up an almost entirely new team was by no means an easy one. Captain Watters was back at end, Stoer at tackle, and P. E. Quimby and King in the backfield, and around this quartet of seasoned men the coach proceeded to build his new machine. A very large squad made up of the 1922 Freshman and Second teams and a number of upper-classmen who had not been out for Varsity football in previous years, furnished the coach with plenty of raw material. The coach arranged two pre-season practice games, one with Mass. Aggies, and the other with Conn. Aggies. These games proved mutually beneficial in both cases.

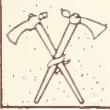

The eyes of the sporting world were focussed to no small extent on the Springfield gridiron. The record set up by our 1922 team caused many football scribes to sit straight up and take notice. There was a certain tension about the campus, and it must be admitted, a sort of lack of confidence. Statements such as the following were frequently uttered: "I don't think the team's as good as last year's", "Too bad Vermont is our first opponent", "Gee but we have a hard schedule this season", etc. Believe it or not, this kind of psychology never helps to win football games. However, everybody was at least talking football and the stage was all set for the Vermont Game.

Springfield, its mettle and ability as yet untested in a real contest, was meeting the big Keady team from Burlington, who came down upon us eager to square accounts for the beating the 1922 team gave them on the occasion of the dedication of their new field. Vermont proceeded at once to launch its aerial attack against the Hickoxmen. The Red-White team appears absolutely helpless against the variety of forward passes that Gooch of the visitors threw. The story is half told when it is remembered that 14 out of 25 passes were completed by the Green Mountain boys. Being completely outplayed in the first three periods Springfield came back in the final period and went over for a touchdown.

Then came the Colby game at Pratt Field. The Maine boys had never been very dangerous in football and we confidently expected to win. The visitors had a comparatively light team but what lacked in weight was more than offset by speed and team play. Every man who carried the ball for Colby was plentifully supplied with interference and this speedy offensive rushing coupled with success in the overhead game spelled defeat for Springfield.

Lafayette, our next opponent, has been rated one of the strongest teams in the East for many years and the Red-White gridsters did a good job in holding them to three touchdowns.

Syracuse was represented on the gridiron in 1923 by one of the strongest elevens it has had for many years. The Red-White team put up a stubborn defense in the first half allowing the Orange to score only 3 points on a field goal. This first half threw quite a scare into the Syracuse stands but the team's valiant efforts had evidently exceeded its capacity and we were crushed in the second half during which the Orange backs ran wild, scoring 14 points in the third quarter and 27 in the final period. The final score casts a shadow on the fine work of the Springfield team in the first half against a superior team in every department of the game.

The team journeyed to Brooklyn, N. Y., the following Saturday and lost to St. John's College by the score of 20 to 7. Here again we seemed powerless to check the overhead offense of the opponents. Our only score came when Mansfield recovered a bad pass by the St. John's center and dashed over for a touchdown.

KING carrying the ball

With five straight defeats in back of them, Hickox's warriors, the student body, and everybody who had any Red-White affiliations or sympathies, were determined that the losing streak should come to an end when we played the supposedly weak Lebanon Valley team. Holy Cross had beaten Lebanon Valley 55 to 0 earlier in the season. From the first whistle our men played unsteady football, and appeared to be laboring under that great tension which told them that a victory was absolutely essential. However, the light visitors put up a stubborn defense and also used an effective aerial offensive, scoring a touchdown in the third quarter. Our only score came on a safety in the final period when Homan of the visitors preferred to give us the two points rather than kick against the wind from behind his own goal line.

A string of six losses and no victories is no "ennervator" for a Red-White football team and the final game with Holy Cross at Worcester resulted in our being snowed under by the score of 40 to 0.

When things go wrong there is a type of the human species that immediately sets about criticizing and maliciously spreading propaganda, neither of which helps to relieve or remedy the existing situation. Regardless of where the blame might eventually be laid, and regardless of the team's poor showing Coach Hickox and every man on the team deserve credit for sticking to the job until it was finished.

Varsity Gymnastics

The 1923-24 season has been one of the most successful and perhaps the most unique in the 19 years of Gymnastics of Springfield College. It is the first time in the history of this sport at Springfield that three teams have been equipped, Varsity, Junior Varsity and Freshmen Varsity. It is the first time that a team of fifteen men has gone out on a scheduled trip. It is the first time that a team has made a two weeks' trip.

There were no individual stars on the team this year. All the men were good team men as well as good apparatus men. It was this fact alone that made the Western trip possible. There were 21 men on the Varsity squad and the competition was so great for positions on the team that one week prior to the Western trip, no one knew who would qualify.

Too much credit cannot be given to Prof. Leslie J. Judd who had the task of developing three teams and having them ready to give exhibitions in a little over a month. Captain W. P. Ashbrook finished his 4th year with the Gym team, being captain the last two years. Much of the success of the team during the past season was due to his ability as an all-round gymnast.

The Western trip was the outstanding feature of the 1923-1924 season. It was a record of which the team may well be proud. Thirteen exhibitions within two weeks, traveling over 2000 miles, passing through 6 different States and Canada, riding on 7 different Railroad Systems besides the Electric lines were included in the program.

In Utica, the team gave a free exhibition in Utica Free Academy to help boost for a new Gymnasium. In Pittsburgh they had the opportunity of performing for a cinematograph, moving pictures being taken of the entire exhibition. The team visited the University of Toronto and inspected the famous Hart House. While in Columbus they visited Ohio State University with "Spike" Mooney as their guide. While in Pittsburgh, they visited University of Pittsburgh and saw the type of work presented there with H. H. Provin, a Springfield man, as host and guide. The team saw the wonders of Niagara Falls as guests of the Y. M. C. A. in that place.

During the past season the team has given exhibitions in 14 different Y. M. C. A.'s, 4 different high schools, 1 State normal school, 1 college, 1 Community house and one moving picture theatre.

Already enough requests have come in to make up a two weeks' trip for next year and from the enthusiasm manifested over the Western trip, it looks as if half of the Student body will be out for Gymnastics next year.

SPRINGFIELD

MASSASOIT

THE 1924 basketball season marked the first year that basketball was classed as a major sport at Springfield College. Realizing that only one veteran, ex-Capt. Dale Lash was lost to the squad and remembering the wonderful record set up by the team under Coach Otto during 1923 the student body and many other followers awaited the first game of the schedule with no little impatience. The Coach had a very large squad out during the practice periods and everybody worked hard to gain a position. It was expected that the four remaining veterans would again make the team, but there was much wondering going on as to who out of such a large squad of likely candidates would fill the vacancy left by the graduation of Lash. Bill Banks was finally selected by the Coach to play guard and his work throughout the entire season proved that the selection was no mistake. Besides being a valuable man in the back court he has the longest playing time record on the squad.

As in 1923, the team finished its season with a very fine record to its credit. Eighteen games were scheduled by Manager Cannon and out of this number the Red-White tossers lost but three. Two of these three defeats, one by Vermont at Burlington and the other by Rensselaer P. I. at Troy can be satisfactorily explained by giving our opponents credit for superior team play. Vermont had a stronger team than last year and the Troy Engineers had perfected a fine passing game. However, the defeat on the home court by the St. Francis five of Brooklyn is the unexplainable feature of the entire season. Anticipating a hard game on the following night against Vermont the Coach started his second string men who played well, holding the visitors to a 1 point lead, the score at half time being 16 to 15. The regulars took the floor in the second half and quickly regained the lead only to lose out in the last few minutes by 5 points. It was the only defeat suffered by the team on the home floor during the season.

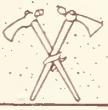

The return game with Vermont on the home court was by far the outstanding event of the winter season. Otto's men were eager for the opportunity to beat the team which gave them their first beating earlier in the season and the student body was "keyed up" to capacity. The game was exceedingly fast from start to finish both teams realizing the value of every minute of playing time. Vermont staged a brilliant rally at the close of the second half almost taking the lead away from the Red-White team. When the timer's gun sounded the end of the game Springfield led by 1 point and our basketball account with Vermont had been squared in a very impressive manner.

Except in the contests with Tufts, Vermont, Rensselaer P. I., Syracuse, and St. Francis, the Red-White team had little difficulty in running up substantial winning margins. This does not by any means underrate the opponents but rather speaks well for the team play of Otto's men.

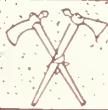

Eight men were awarded Varsity letters and in addition Capt. Reddick and Oosting were given recognition as members of the "mythical" All-New England team.

The team played two post-season games, the first with the Springfield "Y" on the home court which resulted in an easy win for Otto's men, and the second with the Lynn "Y" on the latter's surface which likewise resulted in a Red-White victory.

COACH BROCK was handicapped in his task of rounding a team into shape early in the season due to the condition of the courts. Captain McCutcheon and Hoh were the veterans from the 1922 squad and Heald and Mitchell made the other two places. Manager Stearns was able to book an elaborate schedule of 14 matches which was 5 more than the 1922 team played. The Red-White racquet wielders met stiff opposition everywhere and were able to score only 2 victories out of 14 matches, tying 4 and losing 8.

The team got off to a bad start losing the first 4 matches, scoring only 2 points in all. Holy Cross at Worcester, Wesleyan at Middletown, and Yale Seconds at New Haven, all shut us out 6 to 0. Amherst was a trifle easier and we were able to at least get into the scoring column. The team then broke into the winning column by beating Trinity at Hartford 5 to 1. The University of Vermont came to Pratt Field for the next game which resulted in a tie.

The team then traveled to West Point and was beaten by the Army 6 to 0. Worcester and Harvard beat us by the same score in the next two matches. The victory over Clark University at Worcester was the second of the season for Brock's men.

The team then wound up the season with the New York State trip. The first match of the trip resulted in a tie with Rensselaer P. I. Colgate beat us 5 to 1 on the next day. The last two matches of the season resulted in ties, the first with Hamilton College at Clinton and the second with Syracuse at Syracuse.

Varsity Cross Country 1923

ONLY those who have themselves run over an ordinary cross-country course against time, or those closely connected with the sport, can appreciate the amount of effort and energy this branch of athletics requires of the competitors. It is a team sport in only one sense, i. e. the team's total score is taken as a basis of competition; but actually it is individual "plugging". Running up a steep hill when you have been tired enough and ready to sit down and rest for the past ten minutes, takes real stuff. The average cross-country fan only sees the runners start out fresh and return well nigh exhausted.

Prof. Judd coached Varsity Cross-country for the first time in the Fall of 1923. Quite a large squad responded for the training periods and a regular program of training was outlined for each man. With only two veterans, Capt. MacCullough and Corbin available, the coach had to draw from the 1922 Freshman team, selecting Snowden, Abell, and Madan. Rodriguez and Eldridge were the other members of the new team.

The first meet with Williams College at Williamstown resulted in an easy victory for the purple team. The long auto ride the same day affected our runners to such an extent that all of them were away off their true form. In this meet the Red-White harriers were only able to place 4th, 5th, 9th and 12th. The next meet with Rensselaer P. I. at Troy resulted in a tie at 29 points each.

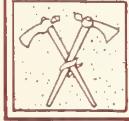

Then came the big triangular meet over our own course. Wesleyan and Amherst were the other two teams competing. Wesleyan won the meet with 32 points, Amherst and Springfield tieing for second place with 44 points each. Madan ran a nice race in this meet leading the field home in 24 minutes 12½ seconds. Springfield also placed 5th, 10th, 13th and 15th.

The season closed with a meet over the home course with the Holy Cross harriers. Springfield placed only 2nd and 4th out of the first nine men finishing, Holy Cross winning 22 to 38.

Varsity Soccer 1923

HEN Coach Affleck issued the first call for Varsity Soccer candidates the only veterans from the 1922 team were Captain Adams and Ko. A world beating team could not have been expected with such a small veteran nucleus but with the aid of several of the 1922 Freshman squad and some new candidates the coach was able to build up a very strong team. There was a large number of men out during the practice periods and possibly the great competition for positions on the team caused the men to play at their best throughout. As a result several very promising players were developed, some of whom are under-classmen and will be available for the 1924 season.

Manager Young was able to book eight games for the team, this being an unusually long schedule for a Red-White Soccer team. In the past Soccer managers have had much difficulty in arranging even a few games. The reason for this is, of course, that Springfield's booters have set up an enviable record beating the larger colleges with as little difficulty as the smaller ones.

The season opened with a game at home with the Boston Chinese Students which resulted in a Red-White victory after a hard struggle. The next three games were played away from home. Rensselaer P. I. was downed rather easily in the first of these by the score of 8 to 2.

With two victories in back of them and with memories that the first defeat in three years for a Red-White Soccer team had been administered by Harvard in 1922, the team moved on to Cambridge to square accounts. The Crimson put up a good fight but superior team play by Affleck's booters resulted in a Springfield victory.

An unfortunate schedule arrangement called for a game with Yale on the day following the Harvard match. The score stood at 0 to 0 at the end of the regular periods but the Blue team scored once in the extra periods, thus administering the second defeat suffered by a Red-White Soccer team in four consecutive seasons. This record in the language of the poet is "not so bad".

The next game with Northeastern University resulted in a bad shut out for the Bostonians. Clark University was beaten in a rather listless game on Pratt Field by the score of 4 to 1.

The Syracuse game furnished the real thrill for the home fans. The game was very fast from the outset, the Orange team having both a strong offense and defense. The Red-White booters missed several tries for the goal but finally caged one. This one point lead looked like a safe margin of victory until the final few minutes of the game when a queer long shot by a Syracuse half back went rolling through our goal posts. The game ended with the score tied at 1 to 1.

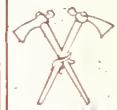

The season closed with a 0 to 0 tie game with the Army at West Point.

CAPTAIN C. BEUKEMA replaced Prof. Affleck as swimming coach for the season 1924 and turned out a good team. Besides the Captain the veterans available were Shepard, Hyde, LaBree, Ellinwood, Ball, and Paine. Bachman, W. C. Hamlin, and H. A. Robbins were the men from the 1923 Freshman team to make the varsity. With such good new material at the coach's disposal the task of building up a strong team was not very difficult.

Manager Munson was able to arrange a well balanced schedule of eight meets, three of which were held in the home tank thus affording the home fans ample opportunity to get a good line on the team's ability in competition.

The season opened with a meet with Wesleyan at home which the swimmers from Middletown won rather easily by the score of 41 to 27. The following week Amherst came to Springfield and were beaten by the Red-White ducks in a very close meet by the score of 35 to 33. The team then continued its winning streak by traveling to Newton and beating Boston University rather handily by the score of 35 to 15. Brown University proved too strong for Beukema's men beating them at Providence by the score of 43 to 25.

Then came the three-day New York State trip in which the team met Union at Schenectady, Rensselaer, P. I. at Troy, and Syracuse at Syracuse. The Red-White ducks trimmed Union by the score of 43 to 25 on the first day of this trip and on the next day beat the Rensselaer ducks by the score of 45 to 26. Two meets in as many consecutive nights had their tiring effect on our swimmers and when they reached Syracuse they were far below top form. As a result the Orange beat the Red-White mermen rather easily by the score of 49 to 22. This last defeat balanced the team's record which then stood at 4 meets won and 4 lost.

Ball was a consistent winner in the dive; Hyde and Ellinwood both showed marked improvement over the 1923 form; and the swimming of Capt.-elect Bachman in the dashes, relay, and 220 deserves commendation.

The team met a number of stellar opponents and its record of 4 wins out of 8 can well be considered satisfactory.

CAPTAIN W. THOMAS acted as Coach of the team spending many full afternoons in the wrestling room advising, correcting, and teaching the numerous candidates. James was the only man on the 1923 team available and the Coach had to have a large number of men working out in order to choose the best man in each weight.

Wrestling practice, like any other winter sport practice, does not excuse the men from their regular gym work and without doubt this is a handicap in getting the men in first class condition. Much energy is required to go through an hour's wrestling practice after doing several hours of gym work.

The 1923 team had only two meets but Manager Murphy of this year's team was able to arrange seven for Thomas' men, two of which were wrestled at home.

The season opened with a meet with Brown University at Providence. All the matches were hard fought and the meet resulted in a 16 to 13 win for the Red-White grapplers. The next meet was with the Holyoke Y. M. C. A. team in our West gymnasium. The "Y" men were no match for our wrestlers and we won every bout.

Cornell always puts out powerful wrestling teams and has won the intercollegiate championship many times. The student body was unpleasantly surprised when our men lost every bout with them. Cornell deserves much credit nevertheless for shutting our team out of the scoring column.

The team then went to Holyoke for the return match with the "Y" team. The Red-White team won again although the Holyoke men put up a better fight scoring 8 points to our 21. The next meet resulted in a shut out for the Red-White wrestlers who were unable to effectively cope with the strong Penn State grapplers. Thomas' men then went to New York City and lost a closely contested match with Columbia University by 1 point. The season closed with a refreshing clean-up victory over Norwich University on the home canvas in which Springfield took every match.

Three members of the team, Thomas, Rudert, and Sexton qualified in the preliminary Olympic tryouts held in Cambridge March 22nd. This makes it possible for them to compete in the final Olympic tryouts to be held later in New York City.

Varsity Hockey 1924

ONLY those colleges that have artificial ice rinks or those that are fortunate in having little difficulty with weather conditions, can hold regular practice for their hockey candidates. Due to the inclement weather throughout the season our rink on the lake was available for very few practice periods. Add to this difficulty the fact that Springfield had no regular hockey coach and had abolished hockey as a sport in 1923, and you will have a fair idea of the obstacles which confronted our puck chasers.

Capt. Granger and Hamm had played on Red-White hockey teams in the past, Chesley played on the 1922 Freshman team, and White, Morgan, and Weatherall were the new men who made the team. Manager M. M. Swartz was able to arrange a very good schedule including seven games, six of which were played away from home.

The season opened with a very close game with Williams at Williams-town which resulted in a Red-White victory by the score of 1 to 0. The next game with the Springfield Hockey Club on our own rink gave the home fans their only opportunity of seeing our puck men in action. This game resulted in a rather easy victory for the collegians.

This made two straight victories for the team and Rensselaer P. I. was slated for a similar fate in our next game with them at Troy. However, the Engineers had a fast team and we were able to score only once while they scored twice. This game broke the Red-White team's winning streak and at the same time started a losing streak which lasted until the season closed. Amherst was our next opponent beating us 3 to 2 in a hard fought game. Mass. Aggie swamped us 7 to 1 in the next game and against the strong Green team at Hanover we were absolutely helpless.

The season closed with another bad beating by Hamilton College at Clinton.

Interclass Competition

The class of 1925 came through last Spring, with a "Garrison finish" and won out in the interclass series for 1922-23, by winning both Tennis and Track. In the track meet, the winner was not determined until the last event had been run off. The class of 1926 was winner in Baseball.

In the Fall, the honors went to 1926. They won in Soccer and Cross-Country and tied with 1925 in Football. Renewed interest was shown in Cross-Country because of the Heyward Cup which was awarded to the successful Sophomores.

Continuing the success of the Fall, the Sophomores won Wrestling and Swimming, while the class of 1924 evened this Winter record by capturing the honors in Basketball and Gymnastics. The Freshman class, 1927, broke into the winning column by coming through in the Boxing competition.

Prospects are very bright for the class of 1926 in interclass competition for the championship.

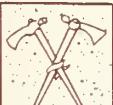

Interclass Sports Record 1923-24.
